

Protecting personal information and using it in a manner consistent with your expectations is a high priority for everyone associated with our camp. As a user of our web site, you also have a responsibility to safeguard your information and how it is used on the Internet. To ensure that you can rely upon the quality, consistency, and confidentiality of this site, we stand behind the following privacy policy:

Security: Camp Mac will collect only the personal information that is necessary to conduct our business. The camp will protect your personal information. As a user of our web site, you will always have the opportunity to review your information and make request changes to ensure that our sources are complete and accurate. We will never sell or divulge in any way any personally identifiable information to a third party, unless we are lawfully required to do so.

Tracking and Statistics: We track how visitors use our online services. This tracking system tells us on which page someone entered our website, what pages were visited, but it doesn't capture any information that personally identifies a visitor. This information is used for internal review to help us in the management and continuing development of our website.

General Disclaimer: Camp Mac makes every effort to provide links from our website to other sites that members will find reliable and non-offensive. However, we do not represent or endorse the accuracy or reliability of any information or content contained on or distributed through web sites linked to or from this web site. Reliance upon any such materials shall be at your sole risk. Additionally, Camp Mac is not responsible for the copyright compliance, legality or decency of material contained in sites linked to or from this web site or subsequent links from other sites.
